

METHOD AND CAMERA FOR IMAGE CAPTURE

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A camera and method for image capture at less than a nominal minimum focus distance provide for initiating image capture through a variable aperture at a first aperture size, collecting a predetermined amount of ambient scene light during 5 image capture, initiating closing of the variable aperture, and illuminating a flash unit during closing of the variable aperture at a predetermined restricted second aperture size.